

DEPARTMENT OF ARCHITECTURE UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA-LINCOLN COMPREHENSIVE EDUCATION PROGRAM CHECKLIST

INTERIOR DESIGN ESSENTIAL STUDIES COURSES (9)

Essential Studies (ES): Each student will take a total of nine courses distributed across the following domains of knowledge: Area A: Communication (1 course); Area B: Mathematics and statistics (1 course); Area C: Human behavior, culture and social organization (2 courses); Area D: Science and technology (1 course); Area E: Historical studies (1 course); Area F: Humanities (1 course); Area G: Arts (1 course); Area H: Race, ethnicity and gender (1 course). A minimum of one course is taken in each area except in the social and behavioral sciences where two courses are required. This requirement represents the minimum experience for an undergraduate student in the full range of university offerings. No Essential Studies (ES) course can simultaneously fulfill the requirement for two areas. Always check with your college advisor about applying particular courses toward your Essential Studies requirements.

ARCHITECTURE INTEGRATIVE STUDIES COURSES (10)

Integrative Studies (IS): Each student will take ten courses which have been reviewed and designated as Integrative Studies (IS) courses. These are standard university courses that engage students intensively in those intellectual activities which are the hallmarks of the educated person - writing, speaking, critical thinking, and the consideration of human diversity. IS courses can be taken from any university department (including the major), with a limit of three from one department. Out of ten IS courses, at least one must be a 200-level course, one a 300-level course, and one a 400-level course. Always check with your college advisor about applying particular courses toward your Integrative Studies requirements. NOTE: Many IS courses will also be ES courses, so that students will be able to fulfill both requirements simultaneously.
